

Edgar Tomblin — Part 7

A holding opposite Manor Farm yard was worked by Abraham Welton. He had land at the south end of Lound down a little lane on the left occasionally spoken as 'Donkey Lane'.

He owned a pair of pure white donkeys as big as mules and worked his land with them. Neat Holme Lane or Clayworth Lane which later became known as Harriet's Lane after Harriet Glasby who lived in one of four cottages behind the bungalow now known as 'Crimond' and opposite East View Farm.

The cottages were in ruins and her garden gone wild when I was little but the tales of Harriett Glasby live on. She sat on a large stone on the corner of the lane and street with a stock whip wherewith she herded cattle to the Pinfold where it cost 4d each to get them out on the same day, double if kept overnight. She was reputed also for her voice which was said could be heard at Clayworth when she called her sons home who worked on the river board. On the opposite corner to Harriet Glasby lived Johnny Haynes who grew turnip seed in his croft.

He threshed and cleaned his seed and took round to farms in his pony and trap to a very satisfied collection of customers in local villages.

Blue-Green Algae

Precautionary Warning

Blue-green algae is most common during the hotter, drier summer months when there is less rain.

Blue-green algae is a term used to describe a group of bacteria, called cyanobacteria. They are not actually algae, but the organisms got this name because they often give the appearance of algae when they clump together in bodies of water.

Blue-green algae can be toxic to animals and humans. The bacteria cannot be seen with the naked eye unless they clump together. When this happens, blue-green algae can look like green flakes, greenish bundles or brown dots in a pond, lake or stream.

When the algae blooms, it can look like a blue-green scum has appeared on the surface of the water.

Blue-green algae may not always be harmful but you can't tell simply by looking, so as a precaution, it's best not to let your children or dogs near the water during hot sunny spells.

For those villagers who have never taken part in a Safari Supper and are not sure what's involved, below is an explanation which we hope will tempt you to join in the fun.

Hosts can be couples, neighbours or friends cooking together for this culinary adventure. Those taking part will be asked to prepare either a starter, main course or pudding for themselves and four guests. We will let you know in advance which course you will be cooking. Who your guests will be is a surprise element of the evening.

The starter hosts will be given a sealed envelope which is opened at the end of the first course. This will tell the hosts and their guests where they are going for their main course. Those preparing main courses should bear in mind that dishes should be substantially prepared in advance. Again, at the end of the main course a sealed envelope is opened to give everyone their pudding destinations.

The evening concludes with everyone moving to the Village Hall for cheese, biscuits, coffee and convivial conversation.... please feel free to bring your favourite after dinner tipples!

All this fun for just £5.00 per person to be paid in advance when you book your Safari Supper adventure.

Timings:

→ Guests should be at the home of the starter hosts by 7.00pm.

→ At 7.45-8.00pm move to the main course destination 8.00pm-9.15pm main course.

→ At 9.15pm-9.30pm move to the pudding destination 9.30pm-10.15pm pudding.

→ At 10.15pm-10.30pm move to the Village Hall.

Safari Suppers have been enjoyed by residents of Lound in previous years. We hope that newcomers and old hands will join in this fun evening. Please let Viv know when booking if you have any special dietary requirements.

As the organisation of this event is complex, please reserve your place by:
